

BLUE GLASS.
Some Valuable Information from Gen. Pleasanton's Book—The Effects of the Chemical Rays on Animal and Vegetable Life.
Maj. Gen. Pleasanton has just published in book-form a number of addresses, memoirs, etc., written and delivered by him at various times, on the influence of the blue rays of the sunlight and the blue color of the sky in developing animal and vegetable life, arresting disease, and restoring life in acute and chronic disorders to human and domestic animals. During the summer of 1871, says Gen. Pleasanton, a professional gardener in Massachusetts (near Boston), who had been trying for some time to protect his young plants from minute insects which fed upon them, after numerous experiments, all of which failed succeeded with the blue ray. He made a small triangular frame, covered it with blue gauze, prepared the ground and sowed the seed, covering a portion of the ground with the frame and gauze, leaving the other part exposed to the attacks of the insects. The plants outside the frame were all eaten as soon as they germinated; those under it escaped entirely.
Gen. Pleasanton's explanation of the phenomenon is that the sunlight, negatively electrified in passing through the meshes of the blue gauze, which is positively electrified, excites an electro-magnetic current sufficient, by strong to destroy the feeble vitality of the eggs of the insects themselves, which are in the soil with the seed, leaving the seed to germinate rapidly under its influence.
A lady residing in Philadelphia also informed the General that, having some choice plants in pots in her sitting-room which were drooping, she threw over them a common blue gauze veil, such as ladies wear, and exposed them to the sunlight and in a short time they were fully restored to health and vigor.
The General also says on the insect question that, having introduced blue glass into the window of one of the servants' sleeping-rooms, it was noticed that large numbers of flies which had previously infested them were soon found dead on the inside sills of the windows.
A gentleman in West Philadelphia had a large lemon-tree, which he prized highly. He placed it in his hall near the vestibule door, the side-lights of which were of glass of different colors blue and violet predominating. The sunlight passing through these side-lights fell upon a portion of the branches of the lemon-tree, and great vigor was imparted to the vitality of these branches, which were filled with fine fruit, while other branches which did not receive the light from the blue and violet panes were small and without fruit.
The early vegetables used in the General's family are for the most part started in pots under blue and plain glass, then transported into proper soil, and are ready for use several weeks in advance of the market.
There has been used corn as early as July 12, which does not ordinarily mature until Aug. 10.
During the latter part of 1871, Commodore Goldsborough learned Gen. Pleasanton's experiments and proceeded to imitate them at Mount City, Ill., where he was then stationed.
The first trial was made by the surgeon, who had every alternate pane of uncolored glass removed from each of two windows in his parlor, and substituted for them corresponding panes of blue glass. A number of plants and vines of many varieties, potted, were properly placed in the room, and in a short time began to manifest the effects of the remarkable influence to which they had been subjected.
Their growth was rapid, and they increased in the length of their branches from one inch and a half to three inches, according to their species, every twenty-four hours.
The second experiment was made on the development of the newly hatched chickens of two broods of the same variety hatched on the same day. One of the coops was partly covered with blue and plain glass; the other coop was a common one, with equal quantities of the same feed. Those under the blue glass soon began to display the effects of the stimulating influence of the blue and sun light by their daily almost visible growth and increase of activity, far exceeding the development of the chickens of the other brood.
Early in 1872 the wife of one of the gentlemen of the station gave birth prematurely to a child weighing only three and a half pounds. It was very feeble, possessing but little vitality. The windows of the room in which it was born and reared were draped with blue curtains, through which the sunlight entered the room. The lacteal system of the mother was greatly excited and secreted an excessive quantity of milk, while at the same time the child's appetite was increased to such an extent that the mother sometimes found it difficult to satisfy its hunger. The child grew rapidly, and four months after its birth weighed twenty-two pounds, being at the rate of four and five-eighths pounds per month.
Gen. Pleasanton proceeds to relate the following extraordinary circumstances: At the close of the late civil war he bought a couple of mules which had been in the military service. One of them was completely deaf, his hearing having been destroyed by the noise of heavy firing. Two or three years after the General got him the animal was seized with so violent acute rheumatism that he could not walk. He got a great deal better of it but his deafness continued until the spring of 1874, when he recovered entirely from both deafness and rheumatism. Over each of the doors of the stable to which he had been removed was a transom with panes of blue and colorless glass. The stall of this mule was before a door with such a transom over it, and the rising sun cast his light through the transom on to the neck and back of the head of this mule. In the afternoon he threw his light again upon the head and neck of this mule through the transom of a side door. The effect of the light upon the animal was the cure of his rheumatism and the removal of his deafness; and he is now as healthy and hearty a mule as can be seen anywhere. The removal of the deafness was produced by an electro-magnetic current evolved by the two lights upon his auditory nerves and exciting them to healthy action.

THE HOUSEHOLD.
FEVER AND AGUE REMEDY.—With the juice of eight lemons put double the quantity of pure Holland gin, and take a wine glassful three times a day.
TO CURE TASTE FOR LIQUOR.—Steep equal parts of the herbs valerian and wormwood together, and drink three times a day, when the desire is felt.
CATARH RECIPE.—Take one-third pulverized salt-peter and two-thirds pulverized sugar, mix well, and snuff two or three times a day, and it will prove a sure cure.
CHILLBAIN LOTION.—Dissolve one ounce of muriate of ammonia in half a pint of ether vinegar, and apply frequently. One-half pint of alcohol may be added to this lotion with good effect.
DOUGHTS.—Take one cup of sour cream, three eggs, two cups of white sugar, one teaspoonful of soda; season to taste. If the cream is not sour add a teaspoonful of cream of tartar.
IRONING MADE EASY.—Put a teaspoonful of kerosene into your cold starch, say to a pint, and your iron will not stick. The smell will soon pass off, and rub your iron on soap or wax if it is rough.
A NICE DISH.—Take six good-sized potatoes; peel and grate; beat in two eggs; add salt; have ready a frying pan in which is some hot lard; put in a tablespoonful, spread out thin; let it brown nicely, but not too fast; turn it, and eat hot.
IMPORTANT ADVICE.—Never leave clothes near the fireplace to dry; nor smoke or read in bed by candle or lamp light; nor put kindling wood to dry on the top of the stove, nor take a light into a closet; nor pour oil or kerosene near an open light; nor keep oil or burning fluid of any kind in rooms where there is a fire.
FRENCH ROLLS.—Into one pound of flour put two ounces of butter and the whites of three eggs, well beaten; add a tablespoonful of good yeast, a little salt, and milk enough to make a stiff dough; cover and set it in a warm place till light, which will be an hour or more, according to the strength of the yeast. Cut into rolls, dip the edges into melted butter to keep them from sticking together, and bake in a quick oven.

CURE FOR DIPHTHERIA.—Having seen accounts of so many deaths by diphtheria of late, I submit the following infallible cure: Sweet oil, hartshorn, equal parts. Apply to the throat externally; bandage with flannel to exclude the air; in two minutes it will blister; take off the flannel; clip the lower edge of the blisters to let out the water, keep off the flannel; keep the throat greased with sweet oil; at the same time keep the bowels regular, by Exchange.
I see in the columns of your valuable paper that "Violet" requests a recipe for making dry hop yeast. I will give her mine, which I have used a long time, and consider splendid: Boil one pint of hops, enclosed in a sack, and six medium sized potatoes, pared, in two quarts of water; when the potatoes are thoroughly cooked, take them out of the water and pass them through a colander, with a tea-cupful of flour; then pour the water in which the potatoes and hops were boiled on the flour and potatoes, and when cold add a tea-cupful of yeast. Let it rise, then thicken with corn meal and dry in the shade. —Exchange.
USEFUL INFORMATION.—Watch the children's feet. The following advice from the New York Evening Post is very important. Let every mother remember it: "Life long discomfort and sudden death come to children through the inattention or carelessness of parents. A child should never be allowed to sleep with cold feet; the last thing to be attended to is that the feet are dry and warm. Neglect of this has often led to a severe attack of croup, diphtheria, or fatal sore throat. Always, in addition from school, or entering the house from a visit or errand in rainy, muddy or thawing weather, the child should remove its shoes, and the mother should herself ascertain whether the stockings are the least damp. If they are, they should be taken off, the feet held before the fire and rubbed with the hands till perfectly dry, and another pair of stockings and another pair of shoes put on. There is no other way to keep the feet warm and dry, so that they are ready for use on a minute's notice."

THE RETURNING TIDE.
The London Times says: If the United States takes from us the largest number of emigrants, they also give back to us the most considerable immigration. In the last three years nearly a quarter of a million of persons have come back to this country from the States.
The commercial crisis and depression of business in the United States may have much to do with this observed result, which it would be rash to consider as other than a temporary modification of the main tendencies of population changes; but it justifies the observation that either the number of emigrants who have gone to the United States for the permanent settlement has diminished recently, or "their place has been taken by emigrants of an older date or native born Americans coming to this country." It is significant enough that last year the inward current almost precisely equalled the outward in volume. More than 81,000 persons left our shores for the United States, and more than 80,000 returned from the United States to the British Isles.

THE INVESTOR OF BILLIARDS.
A pawnbroker named William Kew invented the game of billiards about the middle of the sixteenth century. During wet weather he was in the habit of taking down the three balls and with the yard measure pushing them, billiard fashion, from the counter into the stalls; in time, the idea of a board with side pockets, suggested itself. A black letter MS says: "Master William Kew did make one board whereby a game is played with three balls, and all the young men were greatly re-created thereat, especially the young clergymen of St. Paul's, hence one of ye strokes was named a cannon, having been by one of ye said clergymen invented. This game is now known by ye name of Billiard, because William or Bill Kew did first play with his yard measure. The stick is now called a cue." It is easy to comprehend how 'Billiard' has been modernized into billiards, and the transformation of 'kew' into cue is equally apparent.
As a reason why American farmers ought to be contented, the Agriculturalist gives this account of the farmer in England: "He does not own his land, except in very rare instances, and is obliged not only to pay a yearly rental of $20 to $25 per acre, but to keep the hardy worked land in good condition, and to employ a working capital of at least $50 an acre, to be expended in artificial fertilizers."
"Two hearts that beat as one" is a mighty poor hand to draw to. If there were three hearts, now, there might be a chance of filling, and a good opportunity to bluff if you didn't fill.
A New Hampshire editor received a stem-winding wish as a Christmas present, and at once traded it off for a dog and a shot-gun, and some other articles needed in a newspaper office.
One of the able orators of old Virginia made a good point when he said: "De oyster got no sense dan some folks, 'cause he know when to keep his mouth shut."
